Jodie Corngold Appointed to Judicial Conduct Commission

Governor Andrew M. Cuomo has appointed Jodie Corngold of Brooklyn to the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct for a term ending March 31, 2015. The appointment, which was made on March 6, 2013, fills the lone vacancy on the 11-member Commission.

Ms. Corngold received her Bachelor's degree from Swarthmore College. She is the Director of Communications for the Berkeley Carroll School in Brooklyn, NY. Ms. Corngold is a career communications and public relations professional, having served as Director of Public Relations for Allied Urological Services and Director of Communications for the National Hemophilia Foundation.

Ms. Corngold is one of two gubernatorial appointees to the Commission that must, by law, be non-lawyers. Four Commission members are judges and five are lawyers.

Additional information on Ms. Corngold and the other members of the Commission can be found on the Commission's website: www.cjc.ny.gov.

Background on the Commission

The Commission was established in 1978 by the New York State Constitution to review complaints of misconduct and disability against judges and justices of the State Unified Court System and, where appropriate, to discipline publicly those judges found to have engaged in misconduct.

The Commission is composed of 11 members, all of whom serve without pay. The Governor appoints four members, the Chief Judge of the State of New York appoints three members and the four leaders of the State Legislature appoint one each.

The Commission has a full-time staff operating from offices in New York City, Albany and Rochester.
